

Green Living in a Toxic World

Creating Healthier Families, Schools & Communities

Dynamic, interactive presentations about critical environmental health issues for parents, schools and community and civic organizations

With an informed understanding of the health risks associated with common environmental exposures, you and your community can be involved in taking preventative action and finding practical solutions to these risks.

Patti Wood – author, educator, filmmaker, activist and mother – is helping to bring current information from the scientific and medical community to the public on issues as diverse as choosing safer personal care products and protecting your children from toxic exposures in schools. Patti is the founder and executive director of Grassroots Environmental Education, a Visiting Scholar at Adelphi University, a consultant on environmental exposures for state and local governments, a frequent guest on radio and television programs and the recipient of numerous national and local awards.

Patti Wood

Founder & Executive Director
Grassroots Environmental Ed.

Lecture topics include but are not limited to:

- Environmental exposures and human health
- Making schools safe for our children
- Making your home a healthier place
- Feeding your family right
- Plastics all around us: Which ones to avoid
- Is your drinking water safe? Tips for ensuring quality
- Why and how to maintain your lawn without pesticides
- Thinking about remodeling? Using the right materials
- Looking good: Choosing safe personal care products
- Are there environmental links to breast cancer?

To arrange a presentation for your organization,
contact Grassroots at (516) 883-0887 or gee@grassrootsinfo.org

Patti Wood provides exciting and informative presentations to groups throughout the northeast.

“This was, hands down, the best program we had this year.”

- Gila Katz, New Rochelle, NY

“Patti Wood’s training is invaluable for parents, schools and corporations who want to be responsible to their communities.”

- Carole Sevely, Manhasset, NY

“Patti Wood’s knowledge of these topics is vast and thorough, and her dedication to educating the community and her commitment to our children is awe inspiring.”

- Elizabeth Benjamin, Lloyd Harbor, NY

“If you’re concerned about your kids, you really need to hear what Patti Wood has to say.”

- Naomi Brunnlehrman, White Plains, NY

“Every parent cares about their family’s health and well-being.
It is imperative, therefore, that every parent hear this information.”

- Allison Stabile, Rye Neck, NY

The mission of Grassroots is to educate the public about the links between common environmental exposures and human health. We believe that the key to bringing about positive and lasting change is the cultivation of broad-based public support through education. Grassroots serves local and state governments, health care providers, school systems, community groups, other environmental organizations and individuals through informational projects including development and distribution of printed materials, video documentaries, in-school learning programs, and organization of public meetings and symposia.

